Revision of Road Traffic Act

The Road Traffic Act was revised in November. Under the new rules, dangerous cycling has become subject to punishment.

<Nagara Sumaho>

Making a call with a smartphone in your hand while riding a bicycle or looking fixedly at the screen is called "Nagara Sumaho." The revised road traffic law prohibits "Nagara Sumaho" and has introduced new penalties. However, there is no penalty if the bicycle is stopped while the rider is doing the above actions. Talking or looking fixedly at the screen:

king or looking fixedly at the scree

Up to 6 months in prison or a fine of up to 100,000 yen Causing danger such as an accident: Up to 1 year in prison or a fine of up to 300,000 yen

Prior to this revision, there were punishments for "cycling while intoxicated (sakeyoi-unten)". Under the new rules, "cycling under the influence (shukiobiunten)" is also subject to punishment. In addition, penalties have been newly introduced for serving alcoholic drinks to, riding together with or providing a bicycle to a person knowing that he or she drank alcohol.

Riding a bicycle under the influence:

Up to 3 years in prison or a fine of up to 500,000 yen

Providing a bicycle:

Up to 3 years in prison or a fine of up to 500,000 yen

Serving alcohol or riding together: Up to 2 years in prison or a fine of up to 300,000 yen
